1. This memorandum is for information only; particular attention is called to paragraph 3.

3. He is concerned that there seems to be no central point for recruitment, training, etc., and feels that the several agencies may be competing with each other in this field. He said that he would be very glad to come over and talk with you or anyone you might like to have him see to elaborate, and thought that this might be something which you would want to discuss with the Intelligence Advisory Committee.
